Robert Cole

Dedication

If you lay this book flat on the ground, drill a hole through its cover and insert a tee, it will make an excellent and stable platform for teeing off. The faculty and staff at WHS wish to thank you for having blessed our lives with your presence and we hope that your retirements are filled with open fairways and greens where sand traps never exist.

Barb and Bob,

Girls League Teas, Rally, Basketball Tournaments, Conference Planning, Cadre, New Regimes, Physical Science ... through it all your help made it easier, your participation made it fun, your understanding made it bearable, your outlook put "serious" issues into proper perspective, and your sense of humor improved a multitude of amazing events. — Thanks, and have fun,

Caroline Ramey

Barb — No more "Hi sweetie," "Of course, Babe," smiles, or the delights of our BEAUTIFUL BARB from the front office. You will be tremendously missed. A thousand million thank-yous for all your service and friendship. I wish you great peace, leisure, and happiness in your retirement. Bob — First, the "old memories." I was taking pictures for the annual. You and the basketball team in the huddle. You giving them "the old what for." What a tyrant. For the many long years of great coaching, I thank you. Now, the sly comments in the faculty meetings, strolling the halls at lunch, always grinning, a smart remark up your seleve, and always the complements. Your're the greatest. P.S. Remember the crab pot TGIFs? I now wish you TGI Monday through Sunday. — Love ya,

When working with people qualities such as trust, integrity, and reliability are desired. In all my years working with Barb Balensifer no one exemplifies these qualities more. As time passes, her dedicated, caring ways will be missed by all of us.

Gary McBride

Bob — Thanks for your great humor and all your expertise in the teaching field.

Barb — I cannot say enough for all you've done for me and your foreversmiling face in the office. I, for one, will miss you deeply.

Jim Hackwith

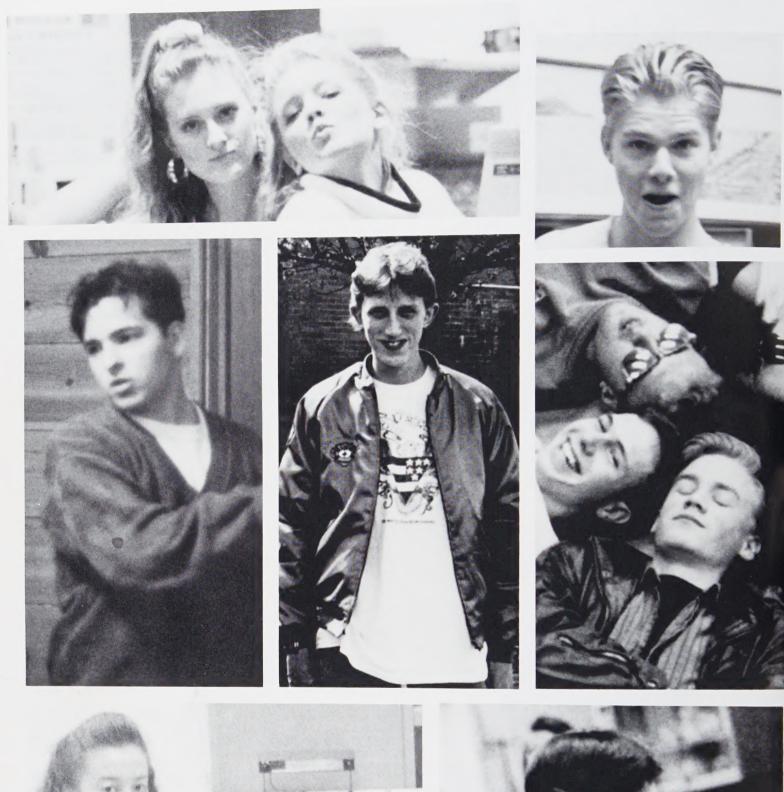

Bob, I'd like to write about the good times we had, but, as you know, those things are unprintable.

Barb, thanks for the foliage in Creative Bookkeeping that has allowed me to stay out of the District Office. You should be given credit for our wins, and my pay for keeping me organized.

John Mattila

Teachers who are new to a school need a great deal of assistance in order to learn the ways of that district. Barb Balensifer made my transition here an easy one. Most of all, I'm grateful for the caring way she had of making my whole family feel welcome. We will miss her presence in our lives here.

The Band Goes To Canada

A performance at the Seattle Center.

Our favorite things — shopping and talking.

Our second annual band trip to Canada left on Thursday, April 30th and returned Sunday night. We performed for the Astoria Middle and Naselle High schools, before stopping at the Tacoma Mall for dinner. We spent one of two nights on a gym floor. The first night included seances; sleeping-bag, pillow, and basketball fights; and a couple girls even got locked in a soccer field surrounded by six foot high fences with barbed wire on top.

The second day was filled with a performance at the Seattle Center, watching a sit-in on the freeway, and getting motel rooms. We spent the evening in the hot-tubs, a swimming pool, and watching "Silence of the Lambs."

The third day was our main performance in Abbottsford and dinner at the infamous Smitty's, who's "quiche" and "big stickies" we will never forget.

The next day, after an important shopping trip, we headed back. By that time, we were all ready to be home and away from each other for a while. At least until the following week, when we went to State.

Jerry's kids relax on their way to Canada.

Joe Bruney wonders if he should hit or stay.

This year, as usual, the Sophomore class put on Casino Night. They worked very hard on many things, from getting prizes to sanding chips (marking cards? Shaving dice?) Mr. Hackwith commented on the effort. He said that the decorations were better than ever. He just wished more people had showed up because the night was a lot of fun.

Thanks to Leslie Claterbos, Casino Night was great.

Steve Ritter doesn't have a very good poker face, does he?

Luke Ray takes time out from the saloon for a bite to eat.

Target Your Life!

Target Day, Target Day, Target Day! All I ever hear any more is Target Day! Would someone please tell me what exactly is Target Day? It is a day where students get out of class and go from session to session learning about problems that not only effect high school students, but all people in general. Some sessions include teen suicide, stress relief, paternity, AIDS, recreation, and even date rape. Throughout the day there were also two large assemblies in the gym. These were the Victim's Panel, and the Columbia Coaster's Wheelchair Basketball team. At the end of the day the Target Group presented a skit on how to "Target Your Life," which was this year's theme. Thanks to a lot of hard work, a lot of extra hours, many phone calls, and a whole lot of help from the dedicated advisors, Mrs. Ramey and Mrs. Dick, Target Day went off without a hitch!

Mindy, Nicole, Stacy, Megan, and Dawn greet the speakers with smiles on Target Day.

Artyce Robinson proved to be a powerful speaker.

Students listen intently during an individual session.

Vince Morrison discusses the values of friendship.

The Coasters Roll To Victory

This local wheelchair basketball team was formed in Spring, 1988, by Spike Barendse. It includes athletes from Warrenton, Astoria, and Knappa. Anyone with a certified physician's document stating that he/she can't play able-bodied basketball is eligible to play wheelchair basketball. The Lower Columbia Coasters include Spike Barendse, Art Clark Jr., Jeff Flanagan, Mike Malinen, Wes Soukkala, and Coach Chuck Haglung.

Nicole Anderson introduces the Lower Columbia Coasters to the school.

Jason Farmer shoots, but doesn't score!

Target member Mindy Nyberg puts it in reverse to try to get the ball.

Coach Haglund preps the team for the game against Warrenton.

Science Fair '92

 $\mbox{Mr.}$ Ogren retaliates against the military project which was set up in his room.

The Science Fair was a great success this year. Grandprize winners were Jason Hicks and Missy Bjaranson for Erosion and Travis Oja for Light. First place went to Stephen Pennuel for Robots, and John Doney and Isaiah Gannaway for Carbon. Second place went to Jessica Garcia and Heather Borders for Backdraft, Son Nguyen and Ryker Thornton for Covalent Bonding, Trevor Fitcha and Nathan Cook for Chemistry, and Jeff Saari and Jake Reese for Lasers. Third place went to Joel Thompson and Fredd Stevens for Star Trek, Tricia Smith and Candy Gramson for Bubbles, Steve Ritter and Kelly Ray for Gerbils, Kim Beatty and Megan Hicks for Logic, and Derick Montieth for Legos.

Mr. Corliss and Adam Bridgens learn how to operate the "Big Machinery."

The crowd lined up to hear all about Joel and Fredd's Star Trek explanations.

Make New Friends But Keep The Old;

Duane St. George, the Friendship Group leader, has been at our school for the past three years. He is a great guy and a fun person to be around. We not only talk about drugs and alcohol, but we talk about family problems and other things like that. Duane is a very understanding person and he is very easy to talk to. Everybody gets along in his classes. To some of us, Duane is not only our Friendship Group leader, but more importantly, he is our friend.

Above: Nikki Peterson is an active member of friendship group.

Below: Come on Mr. St. George, you should smile more often!

One Is Silver The Other Gold.

Our Girls' League activities began with an initiation breakfast at the Shilo. Our new Freshmen members entertained the morning breakfast crowd with silly songs, and dressed in inside-out clothing. We collected food and other items for Pioneer House during the holiday season.

February was the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance with the traditional hillbilly theme. Our Mother/Daughter Tea was held in April at the Red Lion Chinook Room. Everybody enjoyed the delicious food, fashion show entertainment, and presentation of Girls of the Month. Our Big Sister/Little Sister program encourages friendship among girls and also is lots of fun.

Mother-Daughter Tea

Nicole Anderson-School Spirit, Erin Taggart-Talent, Tracy Bergeson-Friendship, Dianne Finklein-Leadership, Amy Tolboe-Dependability, and Christine Saari-Sportsmanship.

The Mother-Daughter Tea was in a different location this year. Instead of the high school cafeteria, it was in the Chinook Room of the Red Lion. After everyone ate, Erin Taggart sang "Save the Best for Last"; models displayed a collection of clothes from Maurices; and Liz Miner, Marlisa Oja, and Karrie Renfrow entertained by dancing to "Shake Your Booty." The Tea ended with the announcements of both the Girls of the Month and Mothers of the Year.

Becky Maltman, Racheal Anderson, Joy Thompson, and Aleta Garcia sang "Boogy Woogy Bugle Boy."

Break A Leg

This year the Spring Talent Show was held on April 7 and it was a little different than it has been in the past. This time the grade school students performed with the high school students. It was a big success and the band and choir raised a lot of money. Here are just some of the many talents that were performed at this year's show: Dianne Finklein, Aleta Garcia, Becky Maltman, Joy Thompson, Elizabeth Bobek and Rachel Anderson did a great job in singing "Needle in a Haystack"; Liz Miner, Karrie Renfrow, and Marlisa Oja did a jazz dance to "Booty Shake," which they choreographed themselves; and Erin Taggart sang the number one Billboard smash, "Save the Best for Last." For the past two years Erin has organized and put together the talent show. She has done a great job and we are going to miss her next year.

These are the backup singers that supported the stars.

Boomer takes a "Resister" test — a challenge in itself.

Mr. Porter proudly sports his Star Trek communicator symbol.

A trip to OMSI was taken by the Advanced Biology classes. The main attraction was "Star Trek, The Next Generation." The students stayed the whole day, and they were allowed to roam at will through the exhibits. They were cautioned, though, not to go to the nearby zoo. It was feared they might be mistaken for animals and caged.

Beam Me Up, Scotty

The similarity is a little scary, wouldn't you say?

"Come on Steve, let me have some freeze dried ice-cream," pleaded Dan.

Oh, yuk! Did you see something move in that sandwich?

Now, what should this caption read? "Dawn and Tricia are examples of your government in action"? No, that would be mean. We'll just leave this space blank — OOPS!

This year, as of every year, the major goals for the Student Council were to approve all school activities and to keep up relations with other schools. As members of the OASC (Oregon Association of Student Council) Warrenton attended two yearly meetings with all members throughout Oregon to listen to speakers talk about new ideas for the school.

Student Council also supported and put on a lot of activities throughout the year. The Blood Drive, ASB Elections, most of the assemblies, the Beach Clean-up, and the Quiz Bowl were Student Council programs. Their biggest event, though, was Homecoming. These students certainly contributed to the success of the school year. They all deserve our congratulations.

ACADEMICS/CLASSES

What does it take to graduate from a fine institution like Warrenton High School? Well, every student here must complete a long list of requirements. As Freshmen students are required to take English with Mr. Wolfe, Physical Science with Mr. Brookins, Global Studies with Mr. Cole, PE with Mrs. Dick or Mr. Mattila, a Math class and two electives.

As Sophomores students receive more freedom, they get electives. They are privileged to have Mr. Porter as their Biology teacher, Ms. Hilterbrand as their English teacher, and either Mr. McBride or Mr. Hackwith for Math. Although they aren't required to take PE anymore students still see Mrs. Dick's smiling face in their Health and Driver's Ed classes.

When students reach their Junior year all that is expected of them is that they show up to complete a 20-Year Plan in Mrs. Ramey's Personal Finance class, listen to Mr. Wolfe nag in English, hide from Mr. Warren's growl in U.S. History, and to choose four electives.

As Seniors the students are only required two classes, English with Ms. Hilterbrand and Modern Problems with the unforgettable Mr. Ridout. Oh, yes, they are expected to find five electives to fill up the remainder of the day. What a breeze!

Delek (Deepy) Palmo writes a convincing article in Journalism class.

Future Schwarzeneggers?

Josh McCallister makes it look so easy.

Jim Davidson gives his muscles a rest.

Why don't you try it with weights on the bars, Ryan?

Sam Smith demonstrates the fine art of lifting.

Lisa Zorich looks like she's really having fun in class. NOT!!

Hola, Habichuelas

In Spanish Mr. Dustin called us habichuelas, cacahuetes, cerdos de sudor, and various other parts of the animal and vegetable kingdom. He said he was only joking, but I don't know. I think maybe he was swearing at us.

Tabatha Quashnick, would you please stop doing your work and look at the camera!

Oh boy, here's one of our Spanish classes! Why aren't you smiling, Son? You look an awful lot like one of the "Little Rascals." Alfalfa, maybe.

How come Liz Bobek has such an angelic look on her face when she's sprouting horns? I'll bet she sings like an angel in choir this year.

Rick Browne patiently awaits his cue to complete this piece with a final "BANG" from percussion.

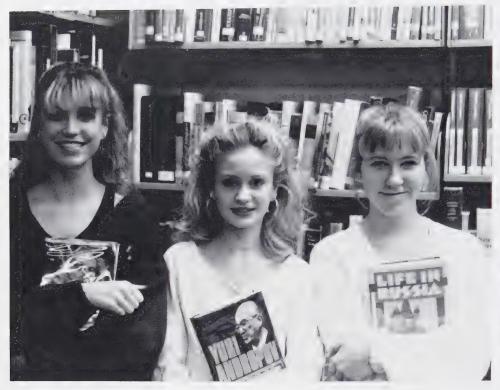

Choir And Band

This is Mr. Ogren's third year teaching at Warrenton High School. He believes his classes have achieved a higher level of musicianship, and he finds the students far more enthusiastic than when he first arrived. He strongly believes that the quality of their performance has gone up. "I see a lot of students with potential in music. Everybody has developed their musical abilities to some extent, and I hope they'll carry these skills into their adult lives."

Krysti Larson, Liz Tilton, Katie Abernathy, Marie Gilson, Racheal Johnson, and Aleta Garcia are all in choir.

Learn A Language By Satellite?

Karrie Renfrow, Liz Miner, and Shonee Thornton are just standing around with their books.

Liz and Carrie find out that the ``Russians Aren't Coming''!

In addition to all the other classes offered at WHS this year, credit could also be earned in first year Russian and Japanese. There weren't really any specific teachers in these classes: the Russian students met in the library while the Japanese students were in Mr. Dustin's room.

Marvelous Mathematicians

Deana Goff sure looks happy in Algebra class.

 $A^2+B^2=C^2$. This was one of the hardest problems Mr. McBride's General Math class encountered. Although math was not required after the Sophomore year, many students chose to continue with their math careers to better prepare themselves for college. McBride's class wasn't the only one working hard. Towards the middle of the year, Trig had a little scare. Mindy Nyberg had a dizzy spell and passed out. The rest of the class felt dizzy, too, along with Mr. Hackwith. It was later discovered that too much Trig destroys brain cells.

Mark McFadden listens as Mr. McBride explains the subject.

Marie Gilson and Eric Buganan show off their Trig house.

To Be, Or Not To Be:

Ryker Thornton, Vanessa Thomas, Christy McDevitt, and Jason Hicks are all Seniors. They are all looking forward to graduating this year.

This is Mr. Wolfe's first yr teaching at WHS.

Gordene, you should pay attention to what you're doing.

That Is The Question.

Come on, Aliah. Don't be afraid to look at the camera.

There were two English teachers this year: Ms. Hilterbrand taught English II and IV, while a new teacher to WHS, Mr. Wolfe, taught English I and III. The first year students read Animal Farm and "Romeo and Juliet." The Sophomores advanced to the "Taming of the Shrew" and All's Quiet on the Western Front. American authors were the focus of the Junior year. Among other things, they read To Kill a Mockingbird. The Seniors struggled with a final term paper, read "Macbeth," and participated in the annual Medieval Fair, where they experienced everything from Old English cooking, to authentic sword fights. The year ended with a sad farewell from Ms. Hilterbrand. She was wished good luck in her future pursuits and we all hope she carries fond memories of WHS into whatever greener pastures she finds.

Fun In Art

GENERAL ART — This class was mostly Freshmen. It was basically an overview of art where the students experienced drawing, painting, ceramics, printmaking, and art history.

Teresa Lene looks like she's having a great time. Hey, Teresa, open wide!

ADVANCED ART — There were 10th, 11th, and 12th graders in Advanced Art. The students concentrated on designs, paintings, and some graphic art techniques — like making video-ads, silk screens, and designed logos. Mrs. Denny-Floyd was particularly proud of the Fine Arts Calender that the students produced this year.

Heather Johnson and Barbie Cullum seem to be working very hard.

Yearbook Yearns For Completion

"Deadlines, Deadlines, Deadlines! Have you revised that copy yet? What, you haven't even written it yet? And who took pictures of last night's game? You need to put film in the camera first."

Mr. Dustin was so intolerable this year that Stacie and Candy got fed up and left in the middle of class. If he doesn't learn to calm down, Mr. D's gonna have an ulcer as big as the Grand Canyon by the end of the year!

Oops, did you miss your nose, Candy?

Julie, Why are you eating that ruler?

You couldn't possibly be having that much fun in yearbook, could you, girls?

Top: Candy Gramson, Julie Hitchman, Missy Waer. Stacie Sivley, and Nicole Anderson. Bottom: Jamie Brown, Missy Bjaranson, Becky Tolboe, Krysti Larson, and Kelly McKey.

Jolly

Journalism

This year's Journalism class was taught by new-comer, Mr. Wolfe. He changed the class to a new system that allowed the papers to come out faster and with higher quality print. Editor Nicole Anderson said that this year's paper is much better quality than last year's. Mr. Wolfe is a welcome addition to the school. Keep up the good work!

Thrilling Thespians

The Drama Department found a new advisor this year, Ms. Hilterbrand. Under her wing the class put on three worthwhile productions. To kick off the new year the class performed the spine tingling thriller, "Horror High," followed, in the winter, by "Comedy Night III," which was a series of short oneact comedy routines much in the tradition from when Mr. Warren was the drama coach. The third, and probably most significant production of the Drama Department, was "The Murky Water Caper." This play was chosen because of its environmental importance. Once it was viewed by the community, the Drama Department went on tour. They traveled all along the coast performing the play and teaching grade school students the importance of water conservation.

Dawn, Dan, Tracy, Candy, and Anna silently watch the funeral magician.

Steve Ritter uncovers a killer in "Horror High."

Aquaculture Fishes Around

The idea of a class where students raise small chinook salmon to release into the wild helping replenish one of the major natural resources of our Pacific Northwest is a wonderful concept. Since Mr. Porter showed up on the scene of our aquaculture program it has been a reality. The twelve students of 7th Period Aquaculture (commonly known as Fish Farm) have worked extremely hard this year. Yea, it's true, if you wander into the class randomly you may see Nick Boland riding around on an old bicycle, or Misty Monsen (the only girl that stayed in Fish Farm) being pantsed, but they're just blowing off a little steam. They are really the most dedicated students in the school. They go beyond the call of duty for their class. On January 31, 1991 the electricity went out and all the students were dismissed at lunch time to go home, but not Aquaculture. All of the students hurried down to save their fish. They made a fire, brought a radio, and Mike Schoenhals was even prepared to make breakfast in the morning. Fortunately the power came back on at about 10:00 and after awhile everyone got to go home. Now would you do that for a bunch of fish?

Steve, what are you doing?

Andy checks his growing fish.

Ahhhhhhh, aren't they cute!

There are five classes in Business Lab. First, there is an early morning class where students work independently. There is also a Computers class, where students learn many knowledgeable skills, including how to make programs. Other keyboarding classes include Typing I and Typing II. The last Business Lab class is Accounting. Here students learn the basics of accounting.

Above: Don't let them fool you; they don't really work this hard.

Sew Much Thread; Sew Little Time

Clothing is only a 1st semester class so the students had to work hard to get their projects completed. In this class Mrs. Ramey allowed the student's minds to explore the vast frontier of sewing. Everyone had the opportunity to choose their own projects, complete with picking out their own patterns and material. Projects which the students create usually include items such as zippers, pleats, and set-in sleeves. At the end of the semester, everyone had a completed project and the ability to sew.

Megan Hicks and Kammy Herrmann perfect the art of cross-stitching.

The clothing class consisted of: Jolene Boyer, Kelli Carney, Amber Hasse, Kammy Herrmann, Megan Hicks, Jennifer Hoogendijk, Heather Kinlsey, Lori Magers, Dawn Mickelson, Jennifer Prince, Arlene Russell, and Valerie Thomas.

Dawn Mickelson smiles as she ishes her project.

Focus Is Family In Family Dynamics

During first period one may remember hearing baby cries from Room 10. No, the students were not watching educational films, they were learning from experience. The Family Dynamics class opened its doors as a nursery, operated and run by the students. To prepare for the screaming, kicking, live children, students began on a smaller scale — Eggs! For one week Mrs. Ramey, the teacher, assigned the students to carry around, care for, and love their eggs. The class survived this parental test. with the exception of Paul Doty, who lost his baby on a Friday afternoon when he crushed his bouncing baby egg in the middle of U.S. History class.

Tracy Bergerson listens intently to Mrs. Ramey.

Paul, Nicole, Christy, and Ryan break from "The Family Structure."

The class consisted of: Nicole Anderson, Tracy Bergerson, Rick Brown Trisha Campbell, Paul Doty, Krysti Larson, Ryan Little, Christy McDevi Heather Morton, and Toni Qualin. There are a lot of different things studied in Science — Biochemistry, Genetics, Evolution, and Ecology. In Biology students worked on labs dealing with the microscope, and microscopic organisms. Another activity the Biology students did was to create inventions for the Annual Science Fair.

Adam Bridgens and Nate Caulder are making Biology look hard. NOT!!

Jamie Hasse, and Paul Doty seem to be studying for a test.

Science

Shonee, Sarah, and John sure look like they're puzzled.

Hey, Mr. Porter! Smile big and work your students hard.

Advanced Biology deals with the animal and plant kingdoms. This year they dissected sharks, turtles, worms, pigs, pigeons, and perch. Also many hours went into the preparation of a plant and insect collection. These students were also contributors to the Science Fair.

Sweat, Sweat

See Mrs. Dick make us run. See Mrs. Dick make us exercise. See Mrs. Dick make us sweat. Mrs. Dick makes us sweat like pig. Sometimes P.E. is fun. Only kidding! Dorworry, Mrs. Dick, we still love ya!

1991 Northwest League Champions In Football

This was the Warrior's winning lineup during their 20-14 victory over Gaston.

Jason concentrates on second half strategi

The 1991 Warrior Football Team had, to say the least, a successful season. Things could have been better, like maybe if Joel Thompson hadn't broken both his wrists at Corbett, or if Warrenton had narrowly won the District Playoff game at Dayton instead of narrowly losing it. But, with an 8 and 1 season, and the Northwest League title in their hands, things could have been a whole lot worse, too. "Everyone put in a great effort," admitted Coach Mattila. "And the team's players had a lot of heart all season long."

Six players made All-League status: Jason Hicks, defensive line and kicker; Ryker Thornton, quarterback; Josh Morris, running back; Jon Hellberg, offensive line; Kelly Ray, defensive back; and Travis Niemi, linebacker. Two players made Honorable Mention: Morgan Owen, tight end; Steve Penuel, offensive line.

The team awards were: Ryker Thornton, MVP; Jason Hicks and Ryker Thornton, team captains; and Kelly Ray, most inspirational.

Believe it or not, Tim actually eluded this tackler.

Mrs. Dick was very pleased with her volleyball team this year. "our overall season was a success, we all worked together and everyone helped in some way to carry the team to the playoffs." All-League players were: Amy Owen, 1st Team; Tracy Bergerson, 2nd Team; and Mindy Nyberg, Honorable Mention.

Girls Go All The Way To Playoffs

You would have never guessed the Lady Warriors had a rough start. A couple of problems kept them from beginning the season with a bang, but they certainly went out in style. With a ten and ten standing they secured Fourth Place in League to go into the playoffs.

Their first playoff game just happened to be with their rivals, the Knappa Loggers. At first it looked as though the Warriors had no hope, but they never gave up. A time-out, called by the frightened Knappa coach, gave the Warriors time to plan their new stall play. A boggled Knappa coach was frustrated as to how to stop the Warrior's effort.

In spite of the hard work, determination, and endless effort by the Warriors, victory hopes were dashed when post, Julie Hitchman, fouled out with four minutes left in the game. Knappa got a lucky lead that the Warriors weren't able to stop.

The Warriors, proud of how their season ended, had four girls with Northwest League awards. Brooke Bridgens and Allison Fitcha were awarded Honorable Mention, Erin Taggert was honored on Second Team, and Julie Hitchman was awarded First Team honors. Team awards were awarded to Shonee Thornton and Nicole Anderson as Most Inspirational. Tricia Smith was Most Improved, and Julie was the team MVP.

Fall Varsity Rally

This year's Warrenton High School rally squads were some of the best ever. Everyone on the teams really worked together to make a special effort during the games — home and away.

During the summer the squads went to Monmouth for a training camp. It taught the girls a variety of new cheers, chants, and stunts, but along with learning the "during-the-game basics," they also learned some things to do during pep-assemblies and fundraisers.

At the end of the winter season (basketball) the Varsity put on a production, choreographed by Christine Saari. The production was a series of cheers, chants and even some dances put together in a way much like you would see in a competition. All in all, the year was a good one for the girls.

This year's DANCE TEAM was small. It consisted of Nicole Anderson, Misty Monsen, Mindy Nyberg and Jennifer Prince all seniors. Their advisor was Shellie Sutton. They danced during both football and basketball seasons and participated in both the Regatta, and the Fourth of July Parade. A few times the girls had problems performing their routines, like during football season when Joel Howatt messed up the music, and twice during basketball season when the music began without the team. Another handicap the girls encountered was the lack of available halftimes. Yet, the girls still left with smiles and fond memories.

NWL Champs

The 1992 Warrenton Warrior's baseball team ended its season with a 20-8 record overall, and a 16-2 record in League. This was good enough to win the Northwest League title, thus earning Warrenton berth in the Class 2A State Play-offs. In the first game of the play-offs the Warriors defeated the Dayton Pirates 6-2, but in the quarterfinal game against Grant Union, the Warriors fell 6-10 in exciting extra innings. All in all, the Warriors put together another exciting and successful season.

Players receiving All-League First Team awards were Ryker Thornton, Joel Howatt, Tom Colvin, and Boomer Bjaranson. Jason Farmer and Mark McFadden received All-League Honorable Mention. Also, Ryker Thornton, Joel Howatt, and Tom Colvin, were selected to play in the East-West 2A All-Star Series this summer in John Day.

April 25th was no ordinary Saturday for WHS students. Instead of working, watching TV, or sleeping, girls were scheduled at beauty parlors, picked boutonnieres, or were having nervous breakdowns. Guys were washing their parent's cars, and picking up their tuxedos and corsages.

While the guys nervously debated how to approach their date's fathers, the girls prepared for their big entrance, which came all too soon. Before the couples knew it they were swept off to an elegant dinner of their choice. Finally the moment of truth arrived when the couples eagerly filed through the doors and up the elevator of the Red Lion Inn.

The room was decorated in silver, black, and purple to accent the theme, "Moonlight Memories." Pictures were done by Lamping Photography in Warrenton, and the music was supplied by Spinnovations from Clatskanie.

No prom would be complete without royalty. This year's prom court consisted of Princess Nicole Anderson, Princess Dawn Mickelson, Prince Travis Oja, Prince Kelly Ray, King Ryker Thornton, and Queen Dianne Finklein.

This year during Homecoming the activities for the students included: Monday, Daydream/Fantasy Day; Tuesday, Nerd Day; Wednesday, Class Unity Day; Thursday, Senior Citizen Day; and Friday, Purple and White Day. During the week there were various class competitions. The results were as follows: videos, 1) Freshmen, 2) Sophomores, 3) Seniors, and 4) Juniors; mascots, 1) Juniors and Seniors tied, 2) Freshmen, and 3) Sophomores; door decorations, 1)

Juniors, 2) Sophomores, 3) Seniors, and 4) Freshmen. Even though everyone worked hard there could only be one winner. The winner of Homecoming 1991 was the Juniors with 152 points. The Freshmen came in second with 127 points. The Seniors came in third with 124 points, and the Sophomores came in last with 112 points. The week was a very big success and the students enjoyed themselves.

I've seen smaller ears on an elephant, Allison. Where did you come from anyway?

Monday, Daydream/Fantasy Day, the day that kicked off the beginning of Homecoming Week. Daydream/Fantasy Day allowed people to dress up as their idols, heros and things they've always wanted to be. The activities ranged from decorating class halls to decorating class doors. The skits were going to be that night and you could feel the excitement in the air.

Class Unity

Students were dressed as french fries, Little Bo Peep, watches, and Ninjas. What could possibly be the theme for the day? Class Unity Day! Each class was assigned their own theme for the day. Freshmen had "Favorite Food Day," Sophomores had "Nursery Rhyme Day," Juniors had "Inanimate Object Day," and Seniors had "Foreign Day." The evening activity was the Boo-Boo tournament. The Boo-Boo game replaced last year's boy's volleyball game because the girls wanted to be able to participate in a fun sport. The teams each consisted of two girls and two boys with only one varsity volleyball player on each team. The Senior team of Ryker, Tracy, Ryan, and Jennifer won the tournament.

Thursday was Senior Citizen Day. The excitement began in the morning pep assembly. There was the usual costume judging that the Freshmen won. Then, in the pie eating contest, Dan Howe, a junior, ate his way into the winner's circle. The evening activity was the girl's volleyball game. They easily defeated Columbia Christian. After the game the cheerleaders hosted the bonfire at which each class burned their mascot, made earlier in the week. After that, the students went home to rest up for the big football game the next night.

The Big Dance

Saturday night ended the homecoming celebrations for 1991. The gynasium was decorated in blue and white, with a gigantic tissue castle extending to the sky. The music was done by Spinnovations and Lisa Lamping, of Lamping Photography, did the pictures. Students started arriving at 8:00 with high hopes for a night of excitement and that's exactly what they found. Candy Gramson said, "In my three years in high school, it's probably the best dance I've attended. We worked very hard. It was a great success."

The Glorious Class Of 1992

Senior

Here the Class of '92 causes a commotion.

Seniors stand united in one of their last homecoming assemblies.

Four years may not seem a long time but to the graduating class of 1992, it holds a lifetime of memories.

When we entered as Freshmen in 1988, the hallways seemed large and our confidence was small. We were taught how to deal with sit-ins, bomb threats, "Sourcasm" and we learned how to run from Mr. Cole's boots. We also learned how to deal with the deaths of some of our friends. And, of course, we started the tradition of losing Homecoming.

As Sophomores we experienced more freedom, since most of us either had our licenses, or permits (which is the reason for Tracy running into the Burger King sign in Mrs. Dick's Driver's Ed class). Ryker was tarred and feathered, and Christy was sprayed with pig juice. That year we lost the best English teacher, Ms. Clausen, and unfortunately the Juniors also lost the D.J. for Prom. It was the year of the claw.

As new upperclassmen, Juniors, we were greeted by a growl from Mr. Warren and no eyebrows by Nick Boland. We managed to make it through a term paper and a "20-Year Plan" only because of the comic relief of the annual Ryan Little Day (or clash-all-youcan day). Dianne's knee popped out at a dance, and our prayers were answered when we got rid of "The Little Dictator."

As Seniors we were expected to break in the new principal, play fair during Homecoming week, and set good examples for the underclassmen. (KNOUGHTKNOTNOT!!) But, in reality, we were nice to Mr. "Z," we only brought Ryan's car in the gym once, and we never "Officially" initiated anyone. Everyone remembers Cori and Amber's outbursts during the class, and that we, as a class, fought to be untraditional. Some things will never change, like memories of Barb, Senior Skip Day, and hanging at the Mart.

Missy smiles proudly because her Kelly graduated.

Christine and Tracy can't wait to hit the beach.

Christy, open your eyes. It's true, you are graduating.

Heather Kinsley reflects on her high school years.

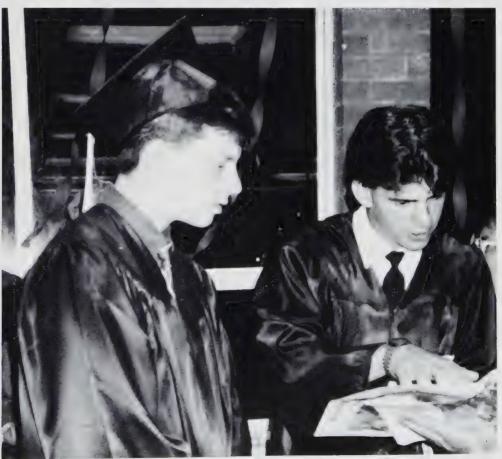

The graduation for the Class of 1992 was a memorable occasion. Just watching the Seniors running around like chickens with their heads cut off was a laugh in itself. Everyone was so excited. The gym was packed with family, friends, and relatives all squeezing together, trying to get the very best picture of their graduate.

As the Seniors sat up on the stage, waiting to receive their diplomas, you could almost hear them asking themselves, "Oh my, what if they forgot mine?" Or "What if I really didn't graduate?"

Eric watches Mike admiring himself in the Senior Edition of the school newspaper.

nessa knows exactly what she's going to do ter graduation.

Seniors Skip For A Day

On March 31st, while the rest of the school was taking S.R.A. tests, we took a break - off to Mt. Hood. We departed on the bus at 6:00 A.M. and our first stop was McD's in Longview. At the mountain our class split in half. The majority of the guys hit the slopes while most of the girls went poolside. After Ryker exposed himself to his surrounding and Joel Howatt had his head stitched up at the hospital, everyone got ready to go to the mall. We piled into the bus and headed to Clackamas Town Center. The girls raced for the best buys and the guys roamed around in a state of confusion. After everyone was rounded up again, we started back for home. We arrived at the high school around 10:00. It was a good day and we had no room to complain. This was the best and only skip day we had ever had. Senior Skip Day was over for another year.

Hiding from the cold weather, Cori finds the fries excellent!

Misty Monsen prepares to ski.

Where's your skiis Ray?

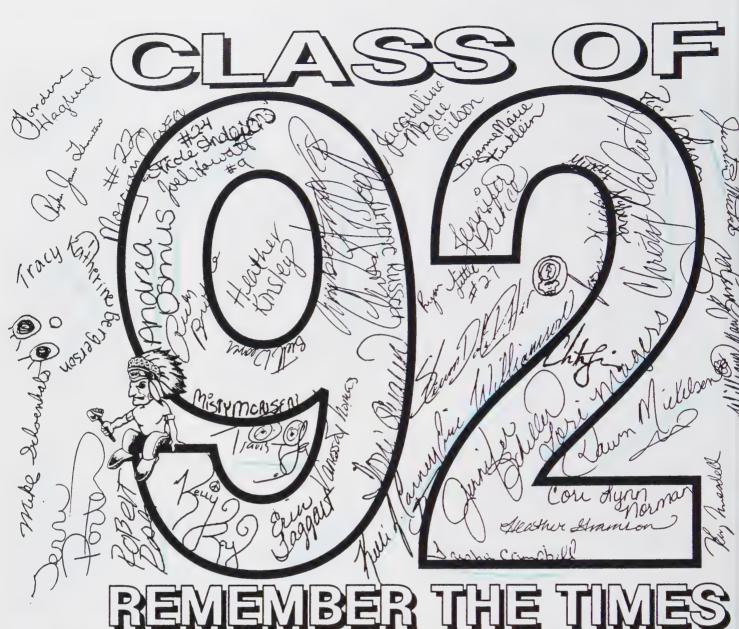

These Senior girls look more interested in the skiiers than the pool.

Lori and Nicole break from gossiping in the room.

Jason and Mike look lost in the mall.

Juniors

Remember me when I'm famous.

Must be an intense fantasy!

Are they in high school or modeling school?

It was yet another successful year for the class of '93. The Juniors worked hard and well together to win Homecoming Week, for the third year in a row. With all the commotion and excitement, we almost forgot we still have one more year left. I'm sure the Juniors will come back even better as Seniors in 1993!

Jessica only dreams about being Luke Perry's girlfriend from the hit series "90210."

iffany has such a pleasant demeanor. She's always smiling and happy — no matter hat. In fact, this photo was taken during her math final.

The Sophomore Class is doing a diversity of things in school this year, ranging from learning to drive in Driver's Ed, to dissecting pigs in Biology, to reading All's Quiet on the Western Front in English II. They've grown up and they're not nearly as shy as they were as freshmen. They're still lower classman, but they're moving up in the world. As one sophomore put it, "It's great not being a freshman. We're not pushed around anymore — well, not as much anyway!"

Mr. Cool, Eric Pedersen.

This year Warrenton High School welcomes an entire crowd of new faces. Can you guess who these new students could be? They came in second for the traditional Homecoming events, they sit on the far side of the bleachers, and they always crowd the halls so that it's nearly impossible to get through. Their class president is Joy Thompson and they are represented by Son Nguyen in Student Council. Miss Hilterbrand and Mr. Hall are their class advisors. If you haven't guessed their identities by now, they're the FRESHMEN! We hope they have a great year!

At 2:15 in the morning Trisha Campbell felt herself slipping from her chair, falling, slowly, to the floor. "Gee," she thought. "This is just like History class."

The only "live" thing in this room was the band that was supposed to be entertaining these people.
